2. Story angles (research leads, not stories)

1. The Birthday He Chose

Hook: What if nobody had written down the day you were born?

Accepted date is not an original birth registration | [Source 01] | Exact quote: "The date was not registered. October 31 is an adopted birth date."

He grew up in Karamsad | [Source 01] | Exact quote: "Spent childhood and had initial education at Karamsad."

Research status: This is a documented archival gap, not a mystery that can be solved by guessing.

2. Three Days Without Class

Hook: Why did a class stop attending lessons because of a teacher?

Later school incident appears in the Congress retrospective biography | [Source 02] | Exact quote: "he organized a successful strike of his classmates that lasted for three days"

Research status: LATER BIOGRAPHICAL ACCOUNT. No original school disciplinary register checked.

3. Two Brothers, One London Plan

Hook: Why did the older brother travel first when the younger had wanted to go?

The Trust says the elder brother went in 1905 | [Source 01] | Exact quote: "Vitthalbhai Patel, elder brother, went to England to become a Barrister"

Vallabhbhai left in 1910 | [Source 01] | Exact quote: "Went to England to fulfill his long-time dream of becoming a Barrister."

Research status: LATER BIOGRAPHICAL ACCOUNT. The oft-repeated misdirected-envelope story needs independent documentary evidence.

4. A Telegram in Court

Hook: What does an account of a family death say happened during a lawyer's trial?

One later Congress biography recounts the moment | [Source 02] | Exact quote: "When news of the bereavement reached Vallabhbhai, he was cross-examining a witness in a murder case at Anand."

The same source says he continued the cross-examination | [Source 02] | Exact quote: "he did not show grief but went on with the cross-examination in hand."

Research status: LATER BIOGRAPHICAL ACCOUNT, not a court transcript. Do not invent the words of the telegram.

5. From Courtrooms to City Drains

Hook: What could a former lawyer change about a city's water and drains?

He became a sanitation commissioner | [Source 05] | Exact quote: "his election to Ahmedabad Municipal Corporation as the Sanitation Commissioner."

Public facilities were extended | [Source 05] | Exact quote: "He extended electricity, drainage and sanitation facility to all parts of the city"

Congress traces his earlier legal work to Borsad | [Source 02] | Exact quote: "moved on to Borsad in 1902"

Research status: The police-bandit story is reported in secondary sources, but a case file was not directly verified here; do not add dramatic details without it.

Government sought land revenue after an increase | [Source 02] | Exact quote: "increase the assessment of land revenue from Bardoli taluka by 22 per cent"

Research status: LATER HISTORICAL ACCOUNT. Need the collector's own record for exact conversations.

13. A Newspaper for Farmers

Hook: How could a small Gujarati newspaper help villagers coordinate a protest?

Published scholarly study documents a daily Patrika | [Source 12] | Exact quote: "The Patrika, published everyday (sometimes twice a day) in Gujarati"

Same study gives the print scale | [Source 12] | Exact quote: "with a circulation of 9,000 to 12,000 copies"

Research status: Journal article appears in a web-text reproduction with irregular line breaks; quote text is rejoined without changing words.

14. The Women Who Said Sardar

Hook: Who began calling Vallabhbhai by a title that stayed?

Hindustan Times credits women of Bardoli | [Source 13] | Exact quote: "the women of Bardoli gave Patel the title of Sardar"

One later historian identifies a woman by name | [Source 14] | Exact quote: "For the first time Bhikhiben addressed Vallabhbhai as “Sardar”"

Research status: UNSURE which single person first spoke the title. Competing accounts in Section 4.

15. Arrested Before the Salt Walk

Hook: Why was Patel in jail before Gandhi started walking to Dandi?

A contemporary Nehru press statement records the arrest | [Source 08] | Exact quote: "He was arrested at Ras on 7 March 1930"

A later newspaper study places it five days before the march | [Source 11] | Exact quote: "Consequently, on March 7, five days before the march was scheduled, Patel was arrested at village Raas."

Official policy names Patel | [Source 16] | Exact quote: "This Department will be in charge of Sardar Patel"

Government paper names his secretary | [Source 16] | Exact quote: "Mr. V. P. Menon will be the Secretary of the new Department"

The 5 July declaration describes the three subjects | [Source 17] | Exact quote: "Defence, Foreign Affairs and Communications"

19. The Princes' Meeting

White Paper names Mountbatten as the convenor | [Source 18] | Exact quote: "Lord Mountbatten called a special full meeting of the Chamber of Princes on 25th July, 1947."

The record explains the proposed subjects | [Source 18] | Exact quote: "Defence, External Affairs and Communications"

Research status: Important: this was a multi-person negotiated process, not Patel acting alone.

Flagship angle: No. 14, “The Women Who Said Sardar.” It puts named and unnamed women, the Bardoli campaign, and the uncertain origin of a widely used title into one question. The evidence permits a clear account of the women's participation while preventing a false claim about who first gave the name. No story prose is written here.

4. Disputes, legends and doubts

A. Place of birth: Nadiad versus Karamsad

Version 1: Nadiad is the birthplace; Karamsad was the childhood home | [Source 01] | Exact quote: "Vallabhbhai was born in Nadiad at his mother’s parental home."

Version 2: Embassy of India reports Karamsad as birthplace | [Source 15] | Exact quote: "Sardar Patel was born on 31st October, 1875 at Karamsad in the State of Gujarat."

UNSURE: Official and institutional accounts disagree. Do not collapse birth location and ancestral home into one place.

B. Exact birthday versus accepted birthday

Institutional chronology: the birth date was not registered | [Source 01] | Exact quote: "The date was not registered. October 31 is an adopted birth date."

Congress biography says he selected that date when filling out a form | [Source 02] | Exact quote: "was chosen by Vallabhbhai himself while filling in a form."

UNSURE: 31 October 1875 is used officially, but not confirmed from an original birth record.

C. Who first said Sardar?

Account crediting the Bardoli women together | [Source 13] | Exact quote: "the women of Bardoli gave Patel the title of Sardar"

Dr Hari Desai credits Bhikhiben specifically, citing a 1990 thesis | [Source 14] | Exact quote: "one lady of A akoti named Bhikhiben told after floral reception of Vallabhbhai"

Patel Trust credits the masses rather than one named person | [Source 01] | Exact quote: "earned the loving title ‘Sardar’—the leader, from the masses."

UNSURE: These sources differ in specificity. A unique first speaker cannot be established with confidence from them.

D. Did he personally plan every detail of the Salt March?

The Indian Express says route selection is a belief, not demonstrated proof | [Source 11] | Exact quote: "It is believed Patel chose Dandi, and even planned the route Gandhi would take."

The same article documents his work mobilising people | [Source 11] | Exact quote: "As Patel went about mobilising people for the march"

UNSURE: Mobilising people is better supported than the claim that Patel personally planned every minute detail.

E. His father and the 1857 revolt

The Congress biography marks the claim as hearsay | [Source 02] | Exact quote: "it is said, had fought in the Mutiny under the Rani of Jhansi"

LEGEND / LATER FAMILY-TYPE ACCOUNT: The source does not identify an original witness or named family teller. Teller: UNSURE. Do not retell the father's alleged service or imprisonment as independently established fact.

F. The telegram during a murder trial

A retrospective biography reports the cross-examination moment | [Source 02] | Exact quote: "When news of the bereavement reached Vallabhbhai, he was cross-examining a witness in a murder case at Anand."

LATER MEMORY / BIOGRAPHICAL ACCOUNT: The telling appears in the Indian National Congress retrospective biography. No contemporaneous telegram or courtroom transcript was checked; the precise sequence and dialogue remain UNSURE.

G. How many princely states were there?

One museum retrospective uses an approximation | [Source 03] | Exact quote: "convincing and merging nearly 560 princely states and colonial provinces"

The Constitution of India member biography uses 565 | [Source 05] | Exact quote: "negotiating with and integrating the 565 princely states"

UNSURE as an exact single figure: Approximations and different counts of states and units appear. Do not write a precise total without defining what is counted.

H. Was the political integration his work alone?

The original government paper named Patel as lead | [Source 16] | Exact quote: "This Department will be in charge of Sardar Patel"

The same document names Menon as secretary | [Source 16] | Exact quote: "Mr. V. P. Menon will be the Secretary of the new Department"

A separate government record names Mountbatten's negotiating role | [Source 18] | Exact quote: "The task of conducting negotiations with the Princes was entrusted by the Government of India to Lord Mountbatten"

IMPORTANT DISTINCTION: These documents establish a team and interlocking responsibilities, not a one-person action.
